Hi Paul,

I confirm that the peer review has been completed and the proposed methodology and 2-3 staged approach has been considered acceptable.

The next step is for the owners of 10-12 view point road to commence design documentation. Once the design documentation is completed and peer reviewed a shire road opening permit will need to be obtained before the works may commence.

The design documentation will involve more testing and inspection of the site and owners are working hard to get the relevant documentation as soon as possible.

Please refer to my responses to your queries in bold below:

A: who is the Geo Tech group used by the owners.

You may have advised before but could you confirm again. Civil test

B: we assumed the detail of the plan : drawings etc would have been part of the review.

They must be available now. Drawings were not part of the review. The review was around the findings and proposal to stabilise the site via a 2-3 stage approach.

C: please confirm again that Cardno are the shire

Geo tech contractor. Stantec (formally known as Cardno) have been engaged by the shire.

D: please confirm how many inspections: tests :

reviews there have been. I am unsure and I will find out from the relevant department.

We understand the shire inspects the site on a regular basis: the attached photo shows a significant wet area around and underneath the platform at the top of the slope. It's been there for a while now. I will make enquiries and have this area inspected.

Regards
